

Summary

This bachelor thesis is dealing with the theme of animals in social world of human. It subscribes the evolution of relationship between man and animal, including it's aspects from the view of history or symbolism. It mentions areas of human-animal interactions important for man and also for social-science analysis. It also devotes the Human-Animal studies, it's origin, development and statement in sociological area. Except all mentioned areas, the text aims also at the area of breeding animals, torturing animals and using animals in therapeuticall procedures such as canistherapy, hipotherapy or felinotherapy. The object of this work is to outline the list of human life areas, where interactions with animals are playing one of the main role and to underline the meaning of animals in regular everyday normal life, but also their role in significant area of research in social studies.